Toppan announces development of new packaging to meet demand

SUBMITTED

Toppan Printing — a global leader in communication, packaging, décor materials, and electronics solutions - has developed all-PET (polyethylene terephthalate) laminate monomaterial flexible packaging for individual packages.

The combination of PET-based GL FILM, from Toppan's marketleading GL BARRIER range of transparent barrier films, with PET sealant enables a more readily recyclable alternative to conventional individual packaging composed of multiple materials, often including aluminum.

The manufacturing method and monomaterial structure industries began this month.

also provide outstanding oxygen and moisture barrier performance as well as low adsorption to maintain content aroma and quality.

This follows Toppan's previous announcement of GL-LP, an all-PP laminate monomaterial barrier film in its GL FILM range.

The all-PET monomaterial flexible packaging can be used for a wide range of food and pharmaceutical product packages as well as for shampoo, conditioner, and other liquid personal care

Demand for such goods is expected to increase and sample shipments for the toiletry, medical, pharmaceutical, and food

"By developing PET monomaterial packaging, we are able to meet today's demand for more environmentally friendly packaging and more effective recycling of plastic resources," said Haruhiko Noguchi, Managing Executive Officer of Toppan's Packaging Solutions business. "For this flexible packaging product we have applied the advanced technologies that have enabled us to secure a leading position in the global market for transparent barrier films over the last 30 years. It enables the same outstanding quality retention that people have come to expect from Toppan and is also aligned with our wider goal of contributing to a sustainable society."

Validity of Obama health care law at issue in appeal hearing

NEW ORLEANS — With health insurance availability for millions of Americans on the line, supporters of President Barack Obama's signature health care law asked a federal appeals court Tuesday to conclude that the law is still valid even though Congress eliminated a tax it imposed on people who don't buy insurance.

The arguments presented before a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals marked the latest development in a 2018 lawsuit that claims the absence of a tax converts the law into an unconstitutional directive to U.S. citizens to buy a product.

It was unclear when the three-judge panel would rule.

In December, a Texas-based federal judge agreed with the lawsuit, filed by a coalition of 18 Republican-leaning states with some backing from the Trump administration.

The appeal in front of the circuit court in New Orleans was filed by a California-led group of 20 Democraticleading states and the House of Representatives, whose attorneys faced intense and seemingly skeptical questions from two of the panel's judges Tuesday.

Bourbon spill from fire making way to Ohio River

VERSAILLES, Ky. — Bourbon that leaked from a fire that destroyed a Jim Beam barrel warehouse in Kentucky is making its way to the Ohio

State environmental officials say they're assessing wildlife impacts and doing fish kill counts along the waterways near the Woodford County

The Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet says in a release on social media that an "alcohol plume" from the bourbon runoff in the Kentucky River is approximately 23 miles long.

The cabinet says the bourbon should dissipate very quickly once it reaches the much larger body of water.

Officials estimate about 45,000 barrels of bourbon were destroyed in the fire that started Tuesday. It was extinguished over the weekend.

Community Ambulance wins AHA

SUBMITTED

Community Ambulance received the American Heart Association's Mission: Lifeline EMS Silver Plus Award for its implementation of improvement measures for treating patients who experience severe heart attacks.

'We applaud Community Ambulance for achieving this award in following evidencebased guidelines in the treatment of people who have severe heart attacks," said Dr. Tim Henry, chair of the Mission: Lifeline Acute Coronary Syndrome Subcommittee. "EMTs and paramedics play a vital part in the system of care for those who have heart attacks. Since they are often the first medical point of contact, they can save precious minutes of treatment time by activating the emergency response system that alerts hospitals to an incoming heart attack patient." The AHA's Mission: Lifeline program recognizes emergency medical services for their efforts in improving systems of care to rapidly identify suspected heart attack patients, to promptly notify the medical center and to trigger an early response from the awaiting hospital personnel.

Community Ambulance began serving Georgia communities over four decades ago and was the first emergency medical services provider in Georgia to achieve dual accreditation through the Commission on Accreditation of Ambulance Services and the International Academies of Emergency Medical Dispatch, according to a press release issued by Community Ambulance.
